

Know exactly where to apply — and why.

You get a spreadsheet, deep dossiers on your top picks, and a step-by-step apply guide per country — files you keep for the whole application season, not a chat log that scrolls away.

WHAT YOU ACTUALLY GET — THREE PARTS

TIER 1 — THE LIST

The shortlist

Your real options, costed in ringgit.

- 20–40 unis that fit your grades & budget, cut to a verified 8–12
- 34 columns per uni, opens in Excel / Google Sheets
- Reach / Match / Safety kept separate from the quality score
- Total cost of the whole degree in MYR — not per year
- Recognised in Malaysia? flagged for regulated careers

TIER 2 — THE DOSSIERS

The deep dive

Can I get in, will I belong, what will it take?

- 3–5 deep dossiers, 16 sections each, as PDFs
- Who actually gets in — real admitted-student grades & essay angles
- Full cost, scholarships, visa, work rights
- Honest reasons to hesitate on every uni

TIER 3 — THE APPLY PACK

The how-to-apply

Now go do it — nothing missed.

- One deadline calendar across every country
- A per-region apply guide (PDF), grouped by system so shared work is done once
- Exact scholarship & financial-aid mechanics — forms, dates, what aid really covers

“CAN’T I JUST USE GEMINI?”

Honestly, for a lot of it — yes. Three things it won’t do, and it’s not a prompting skill you can fix:

1. It ranks unis you can’t get into as #1

It can’t tell “great uni” apart from “you can actually get in.” Mine keeps those in two separate columns — did your list tell you which ones were reaches?

2. It won’t say when it’s guessing

It’ll give you a 2022 tuition fee as current fact. Every number here is checked against the official page — and each row is stamped with whether it’s been verified yet.

3. It forgets you

Applications take six months. Next week it starts cold and gives a different answer. This is written into files you keep — grades, budget, dealbreakers and all.

RM 50 FIRST FEW FREE

Below the ask-my-parents line — you can just decide.

Straight with you: I’ve done this properly, end to end, for one student so far. I want a handful of examples I can show people — so it’s free for the next few. If it’s rubbish, tell me and pay nothing. RM 50 after that.

When you don’t need me

If you already know your course, know your country, and have your 3–4 unis picked — use Gemini or the UCAS site. Genuinely.

Where it earns its keep: comparing across countries in ringgit · course still undecided · budget is the deciding factor · a regulated career (medicine / engineering / law) that must be recognised back home.

THE 34 COLUMNS — FOR EVERY UNI ON THE LIST

List status · Desirability · Tier · Admission likelihood · Warnings · University · Course · Country · City · Subject rank · Overall rank · Entry requirements · Student grades · Fits grades? · English req · Backup entry route · Annual tuition · Total tuition · Est. living/yr · Duration (yrs) · Approx total (MYR) · Scholarship & portal · Scholarship coverage · Scholarship competitiveness · How to get the scholarship · Money to show (visa) · Work rights after graduating · Recognised in Malaysia? · How to apply · Key deadline · Intake · Notes · Course URL · Info source

This is the list — paste it to anyone who says a chatbot already gave them one, and see how many columns they got.
